HISTÓRIA DO TAVIRA

Existem registos da presença humana no concelho de Tavira no período Neolítico. É no litoral deste concelho que se dá o maior povoamento após a conquista romana, devido à importância económica da pesca e da indústria de salga de peixe. Durante o domínio islâmico, Tavira torna-se uma das principais povoações do Algarve, consequência do valor estratégico do seu castelo e do seu porto. Em 1242 os cavaleiros da Ordem Militar de Sant'Iago ocupam Tavira, prosseguindo a reconquista cristã iniciada com a tomada de posse da vizinha Cacela. A pesca do atum e a indústria de conservas deram nova vida à cidade nas últimas décadas do séc. XIX.

Hoje o turismo e a pesca de polvo constituem as bases da economia da região.

HISTORY OF TAVIRA

There are records of human presence in the municipality of Tavira in the Neolithic period. It was on the coast that the population settled after the Roman conquest, due to the economic importance of fishing & the fish-salting industry. During Islamic rule, it became one of the main towns in the Algarve, due to the strategic value of its castle & port. In 1242 the knights of the Military Order of Sant'Iago occupied Tavira, continuing the Christian reconquest that begun with the neighboring Cacela. In the 15th & 16th centuries Tavira becomes the main support port for the Portuguese garrisons. During this period, it receives several royal visits in 1520 it is elevated to city status. The progressive silting up of the connection with the sea, preventing the entry of ships & the damage caused by the 1755 earthquake are some of the factors that contributed to Tavira losing much of its economic importance at the end of the 18th century. Today tourism & octopus fishing are the basis of the region's economy.
